Alcino Silva, David Glanzman, Kate Wassum, Istvan Mody, Joshua Trachtenberg, Michael Fanselow, Sotiris Masmanidis, Tad Blair, and Tom O’Dell
The 2018 ICLM Distinguished Lecture will be given by Dr. Gyorgy Buzsaki (NYU) (October 9th, 2018, NRB auditorium at noon)
The 2018 Southern California Learning and Memory Symposium will take place on Monday, May 21 2018 (please, mark your calendars) in the NRB building auditorium at UCLA!
The Midterm

The students will choose between writing either a review or a grant proposal or 5 researchmaps of top L&M research papers from 2016-present

http://www.iclm.ucla.edu/blm/exams/midterm.html
The review and grant should not be more than 5 pages (single spaced not including references).

Either manuscript should stress novel and creative ideas about the material presented in class.

The review should not be a simple rewrite of published reviews. It should instead expand on a new insight or perspective in one of the themes presented in class.
The grant proposal should focus on the next step of one of the subjects presented in class.

It should include a summary with an outline of specific aims of the experiments proposed, an introduction with the background for the experimental plan, and a section with a summary of the experiments proposed (they should be feasible experiments based on published methods).
